INTERVISTA DI LORENZO TRUANT, ART DIRECTOR DI AXO LIGHT A DIMA LOGINOFF

Cosa significa per te Fedora, ed il suo riferimento formale alla bambola tradizionale russa che noi conosciamo col nome di matrioska e che tutto il mondo riconosce come tipica del tuo paese?

Si tratta di tradizione russa, ma ha una forma molto minimale se confrontata con altre icone della tradizione russa. Inoltre, a differenza di quello che la maggior parte delle persone pensa della Matrioska, non è così vecchia. Ha la stessa età del cinematografo e l'idea di vari strati che ti portano poi a trovare una bambola all'interno viene dal Giappone. Ma non preoccuparti... Tantissimi russi pensano che la Matrioska abbia almeno 500 o 1000 anni; divertente, no? Ho parecchie bambole a casa. Ne ho una semplice e dipinta di un solo colore: oro. Nonostante io sia definito "il designer meno russo in Russia", amo questa forma e pare che sia proprio nel mio DNA. Il nome Fedora è un vecchio e dimenticato nome russo il cui diminutivo è Dora. Lo adoro! Era il nome della mia bisnonna!

Che rapporto hai con la tradizione, e con le forme del passato? Non intendo solo la tradizione Russa, in generale mi riferisco alle storia delle forme che spesso influenza più o meno artisti e designers.

Ho un rapporto abbastanza stretto con la tradizione. Sono un grande fan del minimalismo ma allo stesso tempo la mia mente è sempre in contrasto a causa di influenze storiche. E non mi riferisco solo allo stile storico russo. FRAME in un suo libro dove si parlava anche del mio design ha scritto: "...forme sensuali...con una sensazione generale di nuovo lusso e di passato che incontra il presente". Pare io mi stia divertendo con questo bellissimo gioco nel design in cui cerco di sposare il moderno alla tradizione.

Negli oggetti che disegni esiste, a mio parere, un legame nascosto col passato che viene trasfigurato dalla naturale consapevolezza della tua capacità compositiva che è tutta contemporanea. Questo elemento nascosto è letteralmente fuso nelle tue realizzazioni che sono perciò spesso familiari e accattivanti, assolutamente nuove ma con un legame segreto con la storia delle forme, come se il risultato scaturisse da una alchimia tra il contemporaneo e una "archeologia sognata", un personale distillato della storia, che si condensa in una idea però sempre nuova. Quale è veramente il tuo processo progettuale, il tuo habitus operativo quando lavori attorno ad una idea, ad un prodotto, e in particolare ad una lampada?

Non è strano che oggi in questo progetto io abbia deciso di unire il vecchio al moderno. In generale dipende dalla forma. Lo sai, ho disegnato tanti oggetti ultramoderni ma a volte semplicemente sento che le forme classiche siano perfette da ridisegnare per farle diventare un prodotto moderno. A volte semplicemente sento che funziona.

Spesso in Europa, il gusto Russo e di buona parte dell'est Europa viene identificato come un gusto molto sofisticato, esigente, legato a stilemi storici, opulento, qualche volta legato a rappresentare degli status sociali piuttosto che a reali esigenze funzionali e di aderenza alla contemporaneità. Pensi che sia corretta questa visione? Quanto la cultura locale e nazionale prevalente ti ha influenzato e quanto invece incide la globalizzazione dei valori nel tuo lavoro di designer? Cosa ne pensi dell'approccio "glocal" nel campo del design? Quando disegni un prodotto ti senti obbligato a rispettare un gusto prevalente per assecondare un mercato o segui liberamente il tuo istinto ed il tuo stile?

Molte persone mi hanno chiesto del "gusto russo" ma davvero non ho saputo aiutarli. Non ho la minima idea di cosa succeda in questo campo. Probabilmente è per questo che non ho ancora disegnato per nessuna Azienda russa. Certamente ci sono differenze con il resto del mondo. Nuovo denaro, nuovo potere, nuove modalità di espressione... i ricchi spesso sembrano strani ma quello che ho notato è che imparano velocemente e stanno cambiando. Puoi facilmente trovare residenze assolutamente moderne, semplici e lussuose così come abitazioni moderne in periferia per la classe media.

E fortunatamente quello che ho riscontrato non ha una connotazione particolarmente "tradizionale". Per quanto mi riguarda inizio la giornata con una tazza di caffè e i blog di design. Guardo molto tutto quello che riguarda il design e non perché devo ma perché questa è la mia passione, è parte della mia vita. Il mercato locale non mi influenza, il mondo del design sì.

Come non mai per la cultura Russa la luce è un elemento metafisico, e la pittura di icone che ci svela Pavel Florenskij ne è la prova più consistente. In questa prospettiva culturale, progettare la luce comporta qualche riflessione in più? Hai una particolare predisposizione al progetto di lampade o per te è indifferente disegnare una sedia, un tavolo, piuttosto che una lampada?

Disegnare lampade è uno degli aspetti del mio lavoro che preferisco. L'idea include così tante sfaccettature...: forma ed estetica, la luce, i raggi luminosi, le ombre. E tutti si dimenticano dell'oscurità; con un gesto illuminò l'oscurità. Quale altro prodotto di design può farlo? Ovviamente però non disegno solo lampade. Per esempio, attualmente sto lavorando su un sistema acustico innovativo.

Facciamo un gioco! Io elenco una coppia di parole, non necessariamente opposte o perfettamente dialoganti fra loro, e tu, se vuoi, fai un breve commento, o mi racconti un aneddoto, o fai una riflessione. Il gioco serve per permetterci di capire il valore delle parole e cosa innescano in noi, a seconda della cultura di appartenenza e delle esperienze che abbiamo avuto. Usa se vuoi anche l'ironia:

Funzione / Ragione

Non stanno sempre al primo posto per quanto mi riguarda.

Tradizione / Innovazione

Potrebbero essere mixate per ottenere un buon design.

Passato / Futuro

Nelle nostre vite è una linea ma in una fase di meditazione (e quindi magari di creatività) puoi giocarci.

Arte / Design

Fratelli. E design è il più giovane dei due.

Artigianato / Industria

Nemici.

Luce / Buio

L'energia. E la lampada è uno strumento per giocare con l'oscurità (lo so... è troppo spirituale!!).

Fisica / Metafisica

Due modi per conoscere l'energia.

Occidentale / Orientale

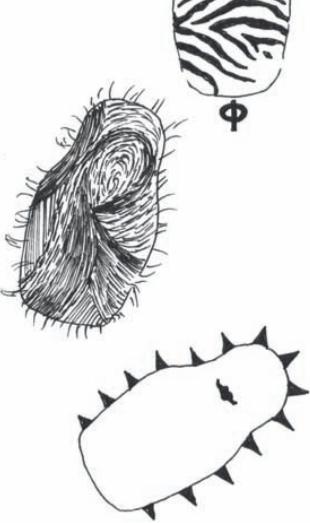

Due tipi di consapevolezza, individuale e collettiva.

Corpo / Spirito

Sono la stessa cosa di Fisica e Metafisica.

Bello / Brutto

Il concetto più incostante.

INTERVIEW BY LORENZO TRUANT,
AXO LIGHT ART DIRECTOR TO DIMA LOGINOFF

What does Fedora mean to you? And what about its formal reference to the traditional Russian doll we know as matryoshka and which the whole world typically associates to your country?

It's traditional Russian, but it has the most minimal shape comparing with other Russian icons. Besides, despite what many people are thinking about Matryoshka - it's not too old. In fact it's the same age as cinematograph. And the idea of many layers when you may find one doll inside another came from Japan. But don't worry! Many Russians are thinking that Matryoshka is 500 or 1000 years old. That's funny! I have several dolls at my home. It's simple and painted just in one bold color - gold. Despite people called me "the less Russian designer in Russia", I love this shape and it seems it's in my DNA. The name Fedora is the old and forgotten Russian name. And the short name is Dora. I just love it! That was the name of my great-grandmother.

How close are you to tradition and to shapes from the past? In other words, not only Russian tradition but I mean the history of shapes which often somehow influence artists and designers.

Quite close. I am a big fan of minimalism. But same time I always have this contrast in my mind - historical influence. And I mean not only Russian historical styles. FRAME wrote about my design in their book "...sensuous forms... with an overall feeling of nouveau luxury and past meets present". It seems I am playing a wonderful game in design when I am trying to marriage modern and traditional.

I think the objects you design have a hidden connection with the past which is transfigured by your natural awareness of your contemporary creative talent. This hidden element is literally melted in your works which are therefore often familiar and appealing, brand-new but with a secret connection with the history of shapes; it looks as if the result arose from an alchemy between contemporary art and a "dream archaeology", a personal essence of history which every time turns into a new idea. How do you actually work on a project, I mean what are you used to doing when you work around an idea, a product and in particular a lamp?

It's not like you decide to connect modern and old in a new project. It depends on the shape in general. You know I have many ultramodern things, but sometimes I just feel that this classical shape will be great to redesign and turn into the modern product. Sometimes I just feel that it works.

In Europe the Russian as well as the Eastern European taste is often identified with a very sophisticated, demanding, historic, classy and fancy style meant to enhance a social status rather than to meet an actual contemporary need. Do you agree with this view? How much has the predominant local and national culture influenced you? How much has the globalization of values "shaped" your job as a designer? What do you think about the "glocal" approach in the design industry? When you design a product, do you feel you have to follow a main taste to go along with a market or do you freely follow your instinct as well as your style?

Many people asked me about «Russian taste». But I can't help them. I just don't know what's going on in that field. Maybe that's why I haven't designed for any Russian company yet. Of course, there is the different with other world. The new money, new power, new ways of expression. Rich people often looks strange, but what I noticed - they learned fast and they are changing. You can easily find absolutely modern, simple and expensive residences as well as modern townhouses in suburbs for middle class. And what I saw doesn't look like too «traditional» luckily. As for me I start my day with a cup of espresso and design blogs. I am checking a lot of design content, but not because I have to. That's my passion, that's a part of my life. Local market doesn't influenced on me at all, the world design does.

Now, more than ever, light is a metaphysical element for the Russian culture and the icon paintings revealed by Pavel Florenskij are the most significant pieces of evidence. In this cultural perspective, is there more reflection when it comes to designing light? Are you particularly keen on designing lamps or do you indifferently design a chair, a table rather than a lamp? Designing lamps is one of my favorite part of my work. It has so many layers inside of the idea. Shape and esthetic, the light, the light rays, the shadows. And people always forget about the darkness. In one turn you light up the darkness. Which other piece of design can do that? But of course I design not just the lightings. For example now I am working on innovative hi-end acoustic systems.

Let's play a game: I'll list several pairs of words, not necessarily opposites or perfectly linked between each other and if you want to you can make a brief comment, tell me an anecdote or what you think about them. This game is meant to understand the value of words and what they can trigger inside a person according to the culture he or she comes from and what he or she has experienced:

Function / Reason

not always on the first place for me.

Tradition / Innovation

could be mixed with a good design.

Past / Future

In our lives it's the line. But during the meditation (as designing) you can play with that.

Art / Design

Brothers. And design is the youngest one.

Handicraft / Industry

Enemies.

Light / Darkness

The Energy. And the lamp is a tool to play with that. (I know it's too spiritually).

Physics / Metaphysics

Two ways of knowing the Energy.

Western / Eastern

Two type of conscience. Individual and Collective.

Body / Spirit

Same as Physics / Metaphysics absolutely.

Beautiful / Ugly

The most inconstant concept.
