SILK ROAD | CHINA

The Eastern starting point of the Silk Road

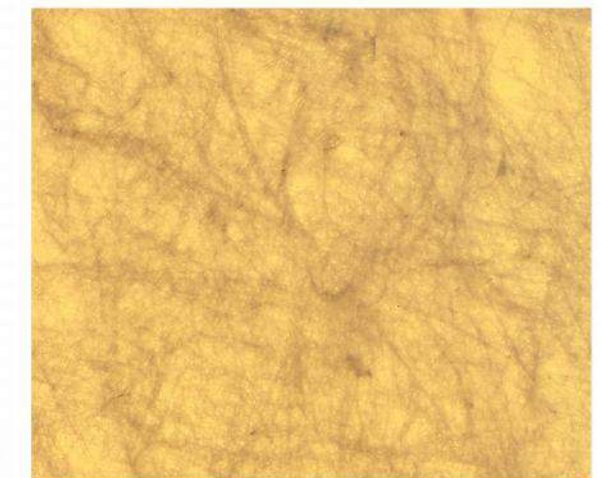

Mulberry Silk: Three Treasures of the Silk Road

Mulberry silk is primarily made of protein. Known as "the second skin" and "Queen of Fibers", it is an irreplaceable premium material with excellent biocompatibility with the human skin.

We combine natural mulberry silk with light for the first time. Using silk as the medium and light as the carrier, we explore the harmony between human, nature and light.

Each piece is meticulously handcrafted, with mulberry silk artfully stretched and fitted onto the lamp body. Leveraging the natural triangular configuration of silk, light is refracted with enhanced uniformity and softness.

In the courtyard of 18th-century China, silkworm cocoons simmer in earthen pots. Women's deft hands draw threads of silk—thin as moonlight, strong as time—weaving the legacy of the Silk Road into every strand. This quiet scene is the quiet heartbeat of Chinese sericulture, a thread that connected East and West for millennia.

CAN SHAN SHUI CRAFTED SILK LIGHT

Rejecting mass production, we adhere to handcrafted silk application. Artisans smooth every inch of silk with their fingertips, ensuring perfect adhesion between lamp body and silk. Every fold, every texture is one-of-a-kind. This is the persistence of slow craftsmanship, the pursuit of detail perfection, turning each lamp into a warm handicraft, telling the story of Eastern craftsmanship in light and shadow.

ORIENTAL SILK SERIES

Inspired by the moment of gently holding mulberry silk between fingers, threads fall naturally to outline a pyramid-like silhouette.

We crystallize this primitive form from oriental silk reeling craftsmanship into a light sculpture suspended in space.

Crafted from 100% natural mulberry silk and hand-stretched, each triangular facet carries the delicate texture and warm luster of silk fibers. When light permeates the silk membrane, soft diffused glow flows between edges—preserving the lightness and translucency of silk while endowing the geometric form with a sense of strength.

SILK CULTURE

Inspired by "Zhu" (pronounced zhù), an ancient Chinese loom shuttle—sharp at both ends and thick in the middle, which carries and guides weft yarn to weave cloth. We take its shape, integrate soft silk, let it shuttle through space, and weave light into "cloth" to adorn life.
